

PageOne Rebrand – FAQ

What happens next? Over the next few weeks, you will see us transition to the new Critico brand across all channels including a new website at www.criticogroup.com, email addresses and invoicing.

Are there any changes to my products & services? There are no changes to your existing products, services and support. We are however continuing to invest in expanding our range of critical communication products and services to include radio (handsets and systems) and call-systems (e.g. Nursecall and panic systems).

Are there any changes to our agreement? Our legal entity – PageOne Communications Limited – un-changed and so there is no change to existing terms and conditions. We will use Critico as a trading name and brand, but our legal entity remains as PageOne.

Will any PageOne company details change: all company details relating to agreements and invoice payments are un-changed, per below.
